

Wasn't It Enough (I'm Sorry)

Wasn't it enough to feel the sunrise on your face.
On the slopes of Wy'east, southern skies, just in case.
Wasn't it enough to hear the rainfall on your roof.
A thunderous clap of summer squall was all you need for proof.

I'm sorry, I never made the time to listen.
I'm sorry, I never took the time to learn.
What made you tick,
Your arithmetic,
What gave your heart its burn.

Wasn't it enough to bring two boys upon this earth.
Such gifts are these, above the noise, above the gold in worth.
Wasn't it enough to meet the one you love and hold.
Once a lifetime, a harbor place, from the wind and cold.

I'm sorry, that I gave up on you so soon.
I'm sorry, if I looked the other way.
Knowing not your pain,
Disguised as refrain,
What gave your heart dismay.
